

Cover Letter

Dear Editor,

We are hereby submitting our article titled “Driving Digital Transformation of Comprehensive Primary Health Services at Scale in India: An Enterprise Architecture Framework,” to BMJ Global Health journal. This article is being submitted as part of a special supplement on “Digital Innovations for Community and Primary Health in India”. This article has drawn insights from technology experts, clinicians, policy makers, and informaticians. An enterprise architecture for primary care is the foundational building block for an efficient national digital health ecosystem. The proposed framework will empower programme managers with a ready reference tool kit for designing, implementing, and evaluation of primary care platforms for large scale deployment. Considering the vast readership of the journal and foremost importance to the theme, we feel that our article is positioned within the scope and would be of interest to various stakeholders in the digital health space.

We confirm that the article in part or full has not been submitted to any journal.

With Regards,
